Some familiar standbys have been given face-lifts and new wardrobes, and are ready once again for prime time.

Gallagher's Steakhouse gets new upholstery and an updated menu. Karsten Moran for The New York Times

GALLAGHERS STEAKHOUSE Dean Poll, who acquired the theater district steakhouse after years of trying, hopes to restore the luster it once had. "I've tried to keep the look pretty much the same except for the cigarette smoke," he said. At the entrance, the meat locker is still there and the year of its founding, 1927, remains emblazoned on the floor. But a sharp eye sees new upholstery and some high-top tables in the bar. Mr. Poll has added more seafood and expanded the wine list. (Jan. 29): 228 West 52nd Street, 212-245-5336, gallaghersnysteakhouse.com.
